The present invention relates to ink discharge methods for ink-jet printing apparatuses and ink-jet printing apparatuses. In the past, ink-jet printing apparatuses which discharge ink from nozzles formed in ink-jet heads with the use of pressure waves generated by piezoelectric elements in accordance with image signals have been put into practical use (see, for example, Japanese Patent Application Publication Nos. 1-61765 and 4-172965). FIG. 15 is a schematic diagram of a method of driving a conventional ink-jet printing apparatus. Referring to FIG. 15, the conventional ink-jet printing apparatus includes: an ink tank 103 which is filled with a supply ink, and in which an ink supply channel is formed; a plurality of printing heads 101 which have a plurality of nozzles 102 on a nozzle surface; a cap 105 which is mounted on the head surface to cover the nozzles 102, and which is provided with an ink supply channel; and a controller 106 which controls the printing heads 101 and the ink tank 103. When a command from a host apparatus such as a personal computer is transmitted to the controller 106 via an interface, a print operation for a predetermined printing area is performed, and the supply ink contained in the ink tank 103 is supplied to the printing heads 101 via the ink supply channel of the cap 105. For ink discharge from the printing heads 101, pressure waves are generated in the printing heads 101 at a predetermined voltage level by the controller 106 which drives the printing heads 101 and the piezoelectric elements. In the above configuration, the ink tanks 103 must be exchanged with ink tanks 103 of a different specification or the nozzles 102 must be exchanged with nozzles 102 of a different specification according to the different printing area. When the ink tanks 103 are exchanged with ink tanks 103 of a different specification, the printing heads 101 are replaced. When the nozzles 102 are exchanged with nozzles 102 of a different specification, the ink supply channel of the cap 105 is replaced. In order to speed up an ink discharge process, the capacity of the ink tank 103 is increased. When the capacity is increased, the ink tank 103 is large and heavy, and it is difficult to exchange the ink tank 103. one of the best I've met.
