Zaccaria is one of the last names of an Italian factory worker family. He grew up in the end of the 19th century, and with great interest he saw the Adirondack Mountains when he was young. He knew those places of natural beauty and he longed to see them again. Wood's Queen was a part of his dream. It was the first major table with a natural theme, and to be able to be designed by the famous Zaccaria company. The story of the table is rather simple. Wood's Queen is a fictitious story. First of all, Zaccaria`s family name contains an `h` at the beginning. His grandson then got the idea of choosing a first name with an `h`. The table was named the Wood's Queen. This table has 12 columns, each with 5 jewels. Up to 10 balls are fired at a time. If you hit one of the jewels, it will boost up. The ball comes down to hit a target; you can tilt the table to move the spot. The spot can be moved forward, backward, left and right. The spot can be rotated 90 degrees clockwise and anticlockwise. There are 60 shots at a time. The beauty of this table is that you can pop target in the same shot! You can do this by tilting your body as well as the table. So you can enjoy the fun of pop bumpers while playing this table. Several shots are useless, which you can change in the settings panel. There are 6 large targets (different in colors) on the playfield. This table is a true masterpiece; it is Zaccaria`s best achievement. Zaccaria recommends that you see this table at least once in your lifetime, but that you should play this table each time. "Wood's Queen" Contents:

some real life experiences. What we are trying to achieve, is to give you an immersive experience outside of what you can see in your screen and for that reason we invest mostly in an atmosphere and the ambience. Noctem is set in a little town in Alaska, with beautiful nature and mostly foggy, a place that strange things happen daily. There are whispers about the Alaska Triangle which connects the states of Anchorage, Juneau and Barrow creating a triangle in which many people have disappeared and most of them have never been found. There are many theories behind this phenomenon, but no one is willing to speak about it. People disappear and most of them remain lost. Some say they died, some say they left. Others are still searching for them, to this day. The question is, where are they? The game takes place in Dry Creek which is a little town inside that triangle. Amelia Hudson used to live in there with her family, right before she moved to England to study writing. While she was 14 years old her little brother, Tommy, was diagnosed with leukemia. After two years, he died. Her mother couldn't bare the pain and 8 months later, she commits suicide. Four years after the tragedy, Amelia was ready to move to England to study writing. But at the time she was there, she found out that her father died under mysterious circumstances in their house. She attended the funeral and devastated as she was, returned to England to continue her studies. The time of graduation was close and Amelia needed to complete her thesis. She decided to return home in order to have quiet and be able to concentrate. By the time she arrives though, she knows that something is wrong. She could feel that she was not alone in the house. Someone or something was messing with her head, her thoughts, her reality. Something is happening that is beyond any human understanding. Can she escape reality? Humans haven't yet explained the complexity behind the theories of the parallel universes, the only thing we can do, is only imagine. Interactive environment. Player is able to open doors, drawers, cabinets etc. with the mouse. Slower or faster. You decide what is best for you! Pick up items and interact with them. Carry items in inventory. Be careful with the anxiety level. Amelia has asthma

What's new:

I'm looking for the pure Fisher breeds in the region of the Buryat Republic and Tunguska krai. Also typical breeds may be of interest. Ages of the breeds born are not to be important to this thread, as I have the means to trace and then register the offspring of purebred parents. (The project is titled Fisher Online - Novosibirsk) Hi gengaishino. Your perspective and knowledge of the region combined with your skills and experience in our forum make you a huge asset to our project. Any updates would be welcomed and we are very interested in your comments regarding the region of interest. I have formed and will run a social club that would uphold the values of Siberian Husky in Novosibirsk. I hope to hear from you about any clubs you have in the region. To answer from the widest view perspective of the region, the variety of breeds in the region could be much more than in Novosibirsk, as there is an old tradition in Novosibirsk of the so-called "Siberian" (mainly Red Siberian) Husky. Outside of Novosibirsk, the region of your interest is very cold, the climate causes... reduced fertility. Breeders from Novosibirsk brought variety of all purebred and mixes, so the variety inside are a combination from different Neirends, strains, etc. Mustache, size, ear size, temperament, hair colours, and silky smooth coats.. all those are present. Old traditions exist in Siberian Huskies is just let ones try- to taste, see what they think, how it is written in their mind and use the "traditional" way of production of these dogs. I would like to hear from you about your club, and about the ideas. SVATGeographics has a ruck for the club in Siberia, where someone could write about their breed. Earlier today, I received a number of requests for breeds currently used in Assiniboia Free State, South Africa. To date, the only breeds avialable for sale in the area include Rovno, Laptost, and Mitgenickahan. SVATGeographies is holding a thread dealing exclusively with the history and use of the breeds in that region. The breeds available for purchase in Africa are already posted in the South Africa Thread. From my observations
